Rail Talks Clear Brief Breakdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union negotiators in a nationwide railroad dispute agreed today to resume talks after a brief breakdown. They said no strike was imminent.

"If I had scheduled a strike I wouldn't tell newsmen," said President Charles Luna of the United Transportation Union.

He said negotiators, who had unexpectedly walked out of the Labor Department after 18 hours of nearly continuous, temper-fraying talks, would be back at the bargaining table at 4 p.m.

Both he and Asst. Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery said they were hopeful of a settlement.

The union, representing some 150,000 train-operating employees, has been free to strike since 12:01 a.m. Monday against any or all of the nation's railroads. Only Congress could halt such a strike in the dispute over wages and work rules that has exhausted all delaying provisions of existing federal law, plus one special act of Congress enacted hastily to end a one-day nationwide walkout Dec. 10.

"This is the toughest one I have ever seen, Usery earlier told newsmen. He has been the Nixon administration's chief mediator in a virtually continuous round of rail strike threats the past two years.

Congress is almost certain to step in again if the union decides to strike in an effort to apply pressure in the 14-month-old dispute.

The UTU is the only one of four unions involved in the Dec. 10 walkout that has not settled its differences. The other three settled in recent weeks for 42-month agreements totaling an estimated 43 per cent in wage hikes above their previous average of $3.50 per hour.

The UTU, which represents almost all on-train workers in the railroad industry, reportedly was near tentative agreement on a similar wage package but was stalled over railroad demands for streamlined work rules.

The railroad claimed the streamlined rules were necessary to increase efficiency and reduce costs. The union said it feared some of the proposed rule changes would eliminate jobs and cut special pay provisions.

Nixon Asks Big Manpower Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon proposed to Congress today a one-third increase in federal outlays to combat unemployment through manpower programs. All of the funds would be parcelled out under his revenue-sharing concept.

In a special message, Nixon called for $2 billion for manpower activities during the first full year of revenue-sharing, which he said he would like to initiate next January 1.

The chief executive said the money would be "rescued from a thicket of narrow categories" and allow state and local governments to plan their own manpower activities, tailored to local needs, with a minimum of federal supervision. He spoke of a "federal partnership, teaming federal dollars with state and local decision-making."

One feature of his proposal would automatically "trigger" release of additional manpower funds—he gave no figure—when the national unemployment rate reached 4.5 per cent or more for three straight months. The extra money, he said, would be distributed by the secretary of labor to areas of high unemployment, starting July 1, 1972.

Nixon suggested that many state and local governments, under such conditions, might choose to use the additional funds to create temporary public service jobs to offset the rise in unemployment.

Thomas To Sing In City

B. J. Thomas, nationally famous recording star, will come to Sikeston April 17. He will be featured in a concert at the high school field house sponsored by the Jaycees.

This will be the third concert sponsored by the Jaycees. The Beach Boys were here two years ago and the 1910 Fruitgum Co. and David Huston were here last year.

Thomas, a native of Texas now living in Memphis, is known for his million-dollar academy award winning song "Raindrops Keep Falling From My Head." "Raindrops" was the title song for the movie "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

He has sold a million copies of "Most of All," "No Love at All" and "Bring Back the Times."

Hartke Proposes Withdrawal of All Forces in Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., proposed today a resolution urging President Nixon to withdraw immediately all U.S. forces in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

He said immediate total withdrawal should be conditional only upon a satisfactory arrangement for the release of U.S. prisoners of war held by North Vietnam.

Student, 21, Files For City Council

William "Webb" Edwards, the youngest person ever to file as a candidate for the city council.

Edwards, a 21-year-old junior at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau was the fourth person to file for the one-year unexpired term on the council.

Mrs. Nadean Dickerson, Mrs. Anita Hope and Glenn W. Milligan also have filed for the term.

A 1968 graduate of Sikeston high school, Edwards says he feels that he would be a "voice for the youth" of the community.

"Having been a young person and like everyone else having experienced the problems that youth have at the present time, I think that I can best represent and relate to the young people of the town," he commented.

If elected Edwards would like to establish a youth council in which a number of young people below 21 would act in an advisory capacity to the city council.

"By establishing the council I think we could bring about an even more direct line of communication between the community and the young people."

Edwards would like to establish a more diversified recreational program.

His candidacy, Edwards says he feels, is a way of awakening parents and alerting them that there is a way of giving their young people more representation and cut down against it.

NEW MADRID — Five absentee ballots cast in Tuesday's $6 million revenue bond election favored the proposal for a $6 million dollar bond issue to complete construction of a power plant in St. Jude industrial park at Marston, raising the total to 405 for the proposal. Six voted against it.

Dial 6666 For News

The Daily Standard has installed a new device that may be used by Sikeston telephone patrons to receive news as it happens.

The service, Tele-News, started today. The telephone number is 471-6666 and will be available day and night.

Tele-News will be used for top news stories, weather, reports and sports.

The Tele-News tape takes either one-minute or 30-second reports. The tape is set now on 30-second reports.

Charleston Housing Project Approved

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Housing and Urban Development Administration has approved a contract of $1,892,493 for construction of 110 low rent housing units with the Housing Authority in Charleston, Mo.

A spokesman at Senator Stuart Symington's office said 40 elderly housing units would be constructed south of the business district and 70 family low income units would be built southwest of the business district.

Charleston City Manager Richard Martin said the first step would be the purchase of property already approved by HUD on which the city has had an option.

Lee Potter Smith and Associates, Paducah, Ky., are drawing up the plans for the project to submit to HUD for approval approximately in May. An invitation for bids on construction will be issued approximately in June.

The project is being financed by the federal government.

Redistricting Plan Offered in Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A new Congressional redistricting plan designed to fit the 1970 census was introduced in the Missouri Senate today by Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy.

He is chairman of the Senate Apportionment Committee which has been struggling to make the new districts conform with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote requirements as nearly as practical.

The 10 new districts vary in population by 11,492 between the largest and the smallest, compared with a variance of only 1,357 in the present 10 districts, which were set up only two years ago after three previous attempts were knocked down by the federal courts.

The largest would be the 1st of St. Louis city and county with 472,824. The smallest would be the 4th, including part of Jackson County and 14 other west central counties, with 41,332.

The new plan apparently would put Congressmen Richard Bolling, D-Kansas City, and William J. Randall, D-Independence, in the same district. Blue Township (Independence) would be shifted from the 4th to Bolling's district.

St. Louis and St. Louis County would be split between the 1st, 2nd and 3rd districts and part of the 9th District of northeastern Missouri would extend into St. Louis County as it does now. The 9th would pick up Ferguson township in addition to its present Spanish Lake and Florissant townships.

The 2nd District would continue to be entirely within St. Louis County and would retain University City but lose the rest of Creve Coeur Township to the 1st District.

The 3rd District, which now includes a small part of southern St. Louis County, would be entirely within the city of St. Louis.

Fast growing Jefferson County, now part of the 8th District of Central Missouri, would be shifted to the 10th of southwestern Missouri.

The 8th, in turn, would pick up what is now part of the 9th District, including Callaway, Osage, Maries, Gasconade and Franklin counties.

Two outstate counties would be split—Macon between the 6th and the 9th districts and Laclede between the 7th and 8th districts.

The new map was drawn on the basis of census tracts in the city of St. Louis, indicating some changes might have to be made when ward and precinct figures from the 1970 census become available.

Missouri's present Congressional delegation is 91 Democratic. The only Republican district is the 7th of southwestern Missouri and it would remain heavily Republican under the new proposal.

It was not clear immediately what the political effects of the realignment might be in the mobile populations of the districts in the two big metropolitan areas.

Here is how the districts would be laid out under the proposal submitted today:

1st—Part of St. Louis city and the St. Louis County townships of Creve Coeur airport, Midland, Normandy, St. Ferdinand and Washington. Total population 472,824.

2nd—University City plus the county townships of Bonhomme, Clayton, Concord, Gravois, Lemay, Lincoln, Meramec, Hadley, and Jefferson. Total 469,532.

3rd—The rest of St. Louis city. Total 470,999.

4th—The Jackson County townships of Van Buren, Prairie, Sni-A-Bar, Washington and Brookings, plus the counties of Cass, Bates, Vernon, Lafayette, Johnson, Henry, St. Clair, Cedar, Saline, Pettis, Benton, Cooper, Howard and Morgan. Total 461,332.

5th—The Jackson County townships of Blue, Kaw, (Kansas City) and Fort Osage. Total 467,373.

6th—The counties of Atchison, Hot, Nowaday, Andrew, Buchanan, Platte, Worth, Gentry, DeKalb, Clinton, Clay, Harrison, Daviess, Caldwell, Ray, Mercer, Grundy, Livingston, Carroll, Putnam, Sullivan, Linn, Chariton, Schuyler and most of Macon County. Total 468,980.

7th—The counties of Jasper, Newton, McDonald, Dade, Lawrence, Barry, Polk, Greene, Christian, Stone, Dallas, Webster, Douglas, Taney, Ozark, Barton, Camden, Hickory and most of Laclede. Total 466,736.

8th—The counties of Boone, Moniteau, Miller, Pulaski, Texas, Cole, Phelps, Gasconade, De, Crawford, Franklin, Washington, Callaway, Osage, Maries, Shannon, Oregon, Howell, Wright, and the townships of Auglaize, Matfield, Smith, Osage, Gasconade, Franklin and Washington in Laclede. Total 465,212.

9th—The counties of Scotland, Clark, Adair, Knox, Lewis, Shelby, Marion, Monroe, Ralls, Audrain, Pike, Montgomery, Lincoln, Warren, St. Charles, Randolph, plus Florissant, Spanish Lake, and Ferguson townships, in St. Louis County and the townships of LaPlata, Lyda, Eagle, Johnson, Jackson, Ten Mile, Round Grove, and Middle Fork of Macon County. Total 468,782.

10th—The counties of Jefferson, Ripley, Carter, Reynolds, Iron, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Perry, Madison, Wayne, Butler, Bollinger, Stoddard, Dunklin, Pemisoot, New Madrid, Mississippi, Scott, and Cape Girardeau. Total 466,731.

House Bill Introduction Picks Up as Deadline Draws Near

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A bill to pay any discharged penitentiary prisoner $40 a week for up to four weeks or until he becomes employed, whichever occurs first, was introduced in the Missouri House today.

The purpose is to help prevent the former prisoner from turning to crime again if he cannot find work at once.

The pace of bill introduction picked up again today because Friday is the final day for offering of new measures in the House. The Senate already has stopped bill introductions except for emergency legislation.

Among new proposals in the House today were bills to:

Double the county share of the state gasoline tax. It is 5 per cent now.

Levy a tax of 5 per cent on the wholesale cost of soft drinks and put the revenue in the state's general revenue fund.

Require the state, instead of home counties, to bear the cost of caring for indigent cancer patients, including burial costs.

Require that Jackson County adopt a plan for disposal of solid wastes by Jan. 1, 1974. The plan would have to be in operation countywide by Jan. 1, 1976.

Require the state to pay schools $50 for each student who completes a high school driver training course.

Specify that after Jan. 1, 1974, every person under 18 years of age would have to have completed a driver education course before getting a driver license.

Another proposal to allow parimutuel betting on horse and dog races would give 45 per cent of the state's revenue from the betting to the division of mental diseases, 45 per cent to the state school fund and the rest for administration.

Advanced to position for final passage was a bill allowing a minor to get treatment for a pregnancy, venereal disease or drug abuse without parental consent. It specifically bars abortion, however.

Wednesday the House passed and sent to the Senate the major money bills in Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' $1.7 billion budget for the coming fiscal year.

The House Governmental Organization Committee approved a bill to transfer the State Department of Agriculture from Jefferson City's crowded governmental complex to the state fairgrounds in Sedalia.

Spokesmen for the city of Sedalia said they would be delighted to have the bill become law.

Bill Hall of the city's industrial development department said "not only would it bring people into Sedalia, it would utilize the facilities at the state fairgrounds all year around."

Lawyers Will Talk On Corporations

The Missouri Bar Association will sponsor an all-day program Friday on the organization of professional law corporations. The meeting, to be at the Holiday Inn, will be moderated by David E. Blanton.

The meeting is one of five held throughout the state to inform professional people on the possibilities of establishing corporations.

Six speakers will be featured: Gerald J. Zafft, a 1959 graduate of Washington University Law School, from St. Louis; has been engaged in the practice of law in St. Louis since 1960 with emphasis on taxation, corporate and probate matters.

Merrill R. Talpers, of Kansas City has served in the office of chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Service for four years and was engaged primarily in tax litigation.

Joseph P. Giljum, a St. Louis University graduate from St. Louis is a noted author and lecturer and is assistant professor of law and taxation with the University of Missouri in St. Louis.

James E. Chervitz, a graduate of Washington University Law School, from St. Louis. Henry T. Lowe, a Harvard law school graduate from Columbia, is professor of law at the University of Missouri and teaches courses on federal income taxation and estate planning. He has been on the teaching staff at the University of Missouri since 1959.

Sylvan Siegler, a graduate of Creighton University, was formerly with the office of chief counsel, Internal Revenue Service, serving as assistant regional counsel.

Candidate's Goal: Better Understanding

The Rev. J. W. Gwin is seeking to be elected to the R-6 district board of education. He is two months short of 41 years of age.

The Rev. Mr. Gwin, is the pastor of the Westend Missionary Baptist Church, where he has served more than seven years.

He is a native of Mississippi, where he began his ministry in 1950. He was ordained for the ministry Oct. 11, 1953; and began as a pastor in 1954. He has been faithful and progressive since that time.

The Rev. Mr. Gwin is a bona fide member of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., and is a field representative of the Sunday School Publishing Board of that Convention in Nashville. He is recording secretary of the Missouri Missionary Baptist State Convention; member of the trustee board of Western Baptist Bible College of Kansas City, moderator of the Christian Liberty Missionary Baptist district association of Southeast Missouri, Inc.; and secretary of the Tri-District Fellowship of Southeast Missouri, also, dean of Christian leadership education.

The Rev. Mr. Gwin, has a family of seven. His wife, Mrs. Ella Mae, a housewife, Carolyn, Castella, Earline, Barbara Ann, Sam, Samuel Earl, and Walter

From City to Country Groceries and Poodles Keep Bratchers Busy

By JUDY GAZETTE

Trumpeter of Falcon, Lucky Gold Coin, Silver Sprig, Silver Commotion, Grey Tinsel — neither romantic tales of the Crusades nor poetic descriptions of wintry days, but names for puppies. Not ordinary puppies, either, but a valuable collection of champion and offspring of champion bloodline poodles.

The Buddy Bratchers operate a roadside grocery store between Wyatt and Deventer. They live in the store building, the adjoining rooms being amply strewn with knick-knacks and photos reminiscent of her five children and numerous grand and great-grandchildren.

That's the ordinary part. Even the fact that three registered poodles live in the upstairs bedroom is fairly ordinary. What isn't is the kennel behind the store housing at least 15 poodles — 10 fully grown and five puppies. I say at least, because several of the females will produce litters within weeks.

The Bratchers were both born and reared in Mississippi county. They married in 1949 and moved to St. Louis where Bratcher worked as a diesel fitter.

"I worked, too," Mrs. Bratcher added, "but when we took two of my grandsons to raise in our home, so, of course, I couldn't work anymore."

Then came the dogs. Sometime during 1956 they got their first — Fifi, a white breeding female. Rene', an apricot, followed, along with TINY APRICOT COLOR FEMALE amidst pedigrees and papers. Her sire is Bratcher's Lucky Gold Coin — a prize animal.

Mitzie, a true black.

"At first, we didn't have any males," she explained, "because we operated on such a small scale. We would breed our females and give pick of the litter. Then we kept other females for half of the litters and so on."

That's the way it happened. Like Topsy, the Bratcher poodle population grew and grew.

"We've had as many as 60 dogs at once in our kennel in St. Louis," she said, "Of course I had more time then. Every hour of every day was involved in bathing, feeding, and burshing ... it's a daylight to dark business."

In order for dog breeders to be recognized and endorsed by the American Kennel Club, they must adhere to strict rules when breeding and selling thoroughbred animals.

"I didn't just happen to learn about poodles," Mrs. Bratcher said quickly, "I read all the available literature, subscribed to publications, and consulted a lot of friends and acquaintances in veterinary fields."

"I was very fortunate to know the Cobb family in St. Louis," she continued. "They have a large kennel there and helped us get established. Cobb took veterinary refresher courses and reviewed the books with me. No, I didn't learn by trial and error."

The Bratcher house pets are an unlikely trio. — For one thing, they are all female (volatile situation, I would guess), and they are not overbearing, pushy animals. Tramp, the eldest, and Dolly are silver specimens, while Baby is black and stands only about 7 inches tall. They love attention and have ways of getting their share, but they respond to discipline, too.

"If you're going to keep dogs in the house," Mrs. Bratcher said, "that's the only way. I wouldn't want an obnoxious, untrained pet, even as much as I love them."

In Defense of Women

by H.L. Mencken

THE CHARM OF MYSTERY
Monogamous marriage, by its very conditions, tends to break down this strangeness. It forces the two contracting parties into an intimacy that is too persistent and unmitigated; they are in contact at too many points, and too steadily. By and by the mystery of the relation is gone, and they stand in the unsexed position of brother and sister. Thus that "maximum of temptation" of which Shaw speaks has within itself the seeds of its own decay. A husband begins by kissing a pretty girl, his wife; it is pleasant to have her so handy and so willing. He ends by making machiavellian efforts to avoid kissing the every day sharer of his meals, books, bath towels, pocketbook, relatives, ambitions, secrets, malaises and business: a proceeding about as romantic as having his boots blacked. The thing is too horribly dismal for words. Not all the native sentimentalism of man can overcome the distaste and boredom that get into it. Not all the historic capacity of woman can attach any appearance of gusto and spontaneity to it.

An estimable lady psychologist of the American Republic, Mrs. Marion Cox, in a somewhat florid book entitled "Ventures into Worlds," has a sagacious essay upon this subject. She calls the essay "Our Incestuous Marriage," and argues accurately that, once the adventurous descends to the habitual, it takes on an offensive and degrading character. The intimate approach, to give genuine joy, must be a concession, a feat of persuasion, a victory; once it loses that character it loses everything. Such a destructive conversation is affected by the average monogamous marriage. It breaks down all mystery and reserve, for how can mystery and reserve survive the use of the same hot water bag and a joint concern about butter and egg bills? What remains, at least on the husband's side, is esteem — the feeling one has for an amiable aunt. And confidence — the emotion evoked by a lawyer, a dentist or a fortune-teller. And habit — the thing which makes it possible to eat the same breakfast every day, and to wind up one's watch regularly, and to earn a living.

Mrs. Cox, if I remember her dissertation correctly, proposes to prevent this stodgy deploitation of marriage by interrupting its course — that is, by separating the parties — now and then, so that neither will become too familiar and commonplace to the other. By this means, she argues, curiosity will be periodically revived, and there will be a chance for personality to expand a capella, and so each reunion will have in it something of the surprise, the adventure and the virtuous satirist of the honeymoon. The husband will not come back to precisely the same wife that he parted from, and the wife will not welcome precisely the same husband. Even supposing them to have gone on out of sight and hearing of each other. Thus each will find the other, to some extent at least, a stranger, and hence a bit challenging, and hence a bit charming. The scheme has merit. More, it has been tried often, and with success. It is, indeed, a familiar observation that the happiest couples are those who are occasionally separated, and the fact has been embalmed in the trite maxim that absence makes the heart grow fonder. Perhaps not actually fonder, but at any rate more tolerant, more curious, more eager. Two difficulties, however, stand in the way of the widespread adoption of the remedy. One lies in its costliness: the average couple cannot afford a double establishment, even temporarily. The other lies in the fact that it inevitably arouses the envy and ill-nature of those who cannot adopt it, and so causes a gabbling of scandal. The world invariably suspects the worst. Let man and wife separate to save their happiness from suffocation in the kitchen, the dining room and the conjugal chamber, and it will immediately conclude that the corpse is already laid out in the drawing room.

Do Plants Scream When Broken?

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine told me something the other day that makes no sense. I am troubled she is a smart girl who usually knows what she is talking about. The more I think about what she said, the crazier it seems — yet she was so sure of her facts I decided to write and ask for your opinion.

My friend says that when you pick a leaf off a tree, or when you pick a flower, the plant actually feels pain and lets out a high frequency scream which can be heard only with a special instrument. She also believes if you talk nicely to one plant and harshly to another plant, the plant you talk nicely to will do much better.

I hope you don't think this is too nutty to bother with. I would like very much to know the truth. — S.M.

by Ruth Amos
Area Home Economist,

If a child asks the question, "Who can I play with?", an unreasonable number of times a day and is not happy unless he is watching cartoons, playing with a playmate, or entertained by a family member, maybe mother should take a look at the toys offered him and the arrangement of his playroom or play corner. Let's look at his toys and ask:

1. Are they suited to his age and his level of development? They should "fit" him physically and mentally.
2. Do his toys set him free to create and express his own ideas?
3. Does the toy have many possibilities for use, making it more interesting and challenging?
4. Does the toy offer opportunities for dramatic play, creativity, and exploration, or does it put the child in a passive position as spectator?
5. Is the toy easily operated, giving him exercise of his large muscles?

6. Are his toys durable?
7. Do the toys encourage cooperative play such as housekeeping equipment and games?

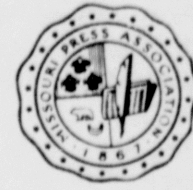

If mother can answer yes to all of these questions, she is not having her child to enjoy neat little box when playtime is over.

The success of your choice of arrangement of toys will be easily recognized by your child's contentment to play with his "toy" playmates and his willingness to share with real playmates and brothers and sisters. Play is truly the business of children, so sharpen their "tools" periodically.

Reb Hopes Die

C A P E GIRARDEAU— The Richland Rebels journeyed a long, hard road to the quarterfinals of the class M state basketball tournament but it ended at Houck Field House Wednesday night. Fredericktown upended the Rebels, 65-64.

Coach Larry Joplin's Rebel outfit, which faced and conquered the three toughest teams in its regional — East Prairie, Puxico and Bernie — before downing Lilbourn in first round play Monday night, displayed poise and ability before the near capacity crowd Wednesday. It made a game of it, leading most of the way before bowing in the final five seconds.

What could well be the state's best one-two scoring punch in high school basketball, 6-foot-6 Steve Kamerman and 5-foot-11 Rodney Denman, teamed for 56 points, scoring 28 apiece. The Blackcats advanced to the semifinals on Kamerman's wheeling layup with five seconds left.

Fredericktown, the big bruising Southeast representative from the lead belt, will go against defending class M champion Hermann Friday night at Brewer fieldhouse in Columbia for a berth in the title game.

Last night's game was a see-saw battle. Neither team managed more than a four-point advantage although the Rebels led most of the contest. The Rebels couldn't take advantage of Fred's early cold shooting to build any kind of an advantage.

Both teams displayed a coolness that one wouldn't expect to see in this kind of match. Each squad failed to shake under the pressure and played almost errorless ball.

The Rebels' hopes of ending a seven-year absence from the state basketball tournament dwindle as the Cats big 6-6 junior center dropped in a layup with five seconds on the clock and an attempt to make a downcourt pass hit the Fredericktown backboard.

Richland shot its way into a 25-24 advantage in the first half behind the out-court accuracy of Norman Cole and the under the basket scoring of John Sims, who bucketed eight and seven while Kamerman and Denman had nine apiece in the Cats first half.

Things looked up for the Rebs, who went ahead, 64-63, with 16 seconds left on big John's layup but three quick passes and the ball to Kamerman under the basket turned the tide.

Richland's junior laden team, pre-season favorite as the number one quintet, lived up to their early rating even though they bowed to the Cats. They'll return their games' two top scorers, John Sims and Cole who had 20 points each, along with the game's top rebounder, Dennis Sims, who pulled down 10 carooms.

Fredericktown shot 53.7 per cent bucketing 29 of 54 field attempts while the Richland cagers weren't far behind with 50.9 on 28 of 55.

Rebounding totals were in the Rebs favorite. Dennis Sims led the rebounders with 10 grabs. Big John was held off the boards as he pulled down a season low of six but 5-foot-8 Cole took up some of the slack with six. Kamerman had eight for the Blackcats.

Richland will be back next season to haunt the SMO hardwoods with three of the games top players returning.

The Bootheel portion of the Southeast Missouri district will be without a representative in the state class M and S tournament for the second consecutive years. Its only hopes lies with the class L regional winner.

Carlton Warms Up

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Steve Carlton polished up his curve as he pitched two innings of an intrasquad game at the St. Louis Cardinals' training camp Wednesday.

The lefthander, who fell to a 10-19 season last year, will face the New York Mets in a Grapefruit League opener on Saturday.

Carlton struck out Joe Hague with a curve, walked two and then struck out Ed Crosby and Tom Heintzelman with curves. "He's going about his work like a determined guy," says Coach Vern Benson.

BIG JOHN SIMS (43) and Steve Kamerman (42) battle for a rebound during quarterfinal round play in the state class M high school basketball tournament at Cape Girardeau's Houck Field House Wednesday night. The two displayed top rebounding and offensive productions. Sims netted 20 points to lead his team in scoring while Kamerman totaled 28 along with Rodney Denman (32) as the Blackcats edged the Rebels, 65-64, on a five second shot by the big 6-foot-6 junior center.

Carlton Gets Starting Call

Steve Carlton was a 19-game loser for the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League last year. He won't be this season if his work in spring training is any criterion.

The 26-year-old southpaw pitched two strong innings in an intrasquad game Wednesday, sharpening his curve and changeup.

Carlton is scheduled to start against the New York Mets Saturday in the Cardinals' first exhibition game. The opening exhibition games are scheduled Friday and, in one of them, the New York Yankees play Washington at Pompano Beach.

Denny McLain, who may start for the Senators against the Yankees, impressed with a three-inning string in an intrasquad game Wednesday. He fanned the side in the first inning, but yielded a run in the third on a walk and a triple by Ed Stroud. Donn Clendenon came up with three hits in three at bats in a Mets squad game in which Tom Seaver pitched two innings allowing two hits and striking out two.

A Cincinnati rookie, Kurt Bevacqua, was the star of the Reds' first squad game. He drove in five runs, two on a home run.

Veteran Tommy Davis also belted a home run and added a two-bagger in the Oakland A's squad game. Joe Pepitone and rookie Garry Jestadt hit for the circuit in the Chicago Cubs squad game. So did Rich Chiles, Larry Howard, Cesar Cerdeno and Cliff Johnson in the Houston squad game.

In off the field activity, Boog Powell, star slugger for the Baltimore Orioles, signed for an estimated $90,000, outfielder Vada Pinson signed with Cleveland for an estimated $61,500 and reliever Pete Mikkelsen signed with Los Angeles for $32,500.

In addition to the Yankees-Washington game, other opening exhibition games Friday include Pittsburgh vs. Chicago White Sox, Montreal vs. Atlanta, San Francisco vs. Chicago Cubs, San Diego vs. Oakland and Boston vs. Houston.

West Back On Injury List

LOS ANGELES (AP)— For the Los Angeles Lakers and Jerry West it was like a recurring nightmare:

A fight for the loose basketball, the tangle of bodies, the fragile-looking figure wearing No. 44 lying on the floor. He rolled in agony.

That was Tuesday night in Buffalo but injuries are an old story for West. In his 11-year pro career he has broken his nose nine times and suffered enough pulled muscles to give Laker fans an extended course in the physiology of the leg. He fractured a hand knocking him out of the playoffs in 1967.

Most of the time, he's playing again within a few days or weeks. This time, he'll be in a leg cast for at least six weeks recovering from surgery Wednesday night to mend a torn medial collateral ligament on the inside of his right knee.

Though West was reported in excellent condition, doctors at Centinela Valley Hospital said the operation could not be pronounced successful until he could test the leg, at least three months from now.

That's nearly two months too late for the Lakers, who will begin the National Basketball Association playoffs in three weeks as champions of the Pacific Division. The playoffs last about a month and without their all-pro guard, the Lakers are likely to be eliminated.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets went on sale at the Bank of Sikeston First National Bank and Security National Bank Thursday for the April 5 basketball game at the Sikeston high school field house, featuring the Harlem Globetrotters.

The magicians of basketball will face the Washington Generals on that date before an expected crowd of 3,600.

Marquette Makes It 38 Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Marquette is closing in on the third longest winning streak in major college basketball history. The nationally second-ranked Warriors from Milwaukee made it 37 in a row by routing Bowling Green 96-74 Wednesday night. They now are only four shy of UCLA's streak of 41 that was snapped by Southern California 46-44 on March 8, 1969.

The all-time collegiate winning streak is San Francisco's 60 straight that was ended by Illinois in December, 1966. The second longest winning streak is 47 by UCLA, stopped by Houston 71-69 on Jan. 20, 1968.

Marquette started its streak by winning its last 12 games of the 1970 season. The warriors are unbeaten in 25 starts this year. They end their regular season against Xavier of Ohio on Saturday. They then face Miami of Ohio in the first round of the NCAA championship tourney on March 13.

they ran off 22 straight points at the start of the second half, made it easy for Marquette behind Dean Meminger's 20 points.

Miami, on a winning streak of its own, made it 12 in a row by whipping the NIT-bound Dayton Flyers 83-53. The champions of the Mid-American Conference, now 19-4, were led by sophomore Larry Garloh with 25 points.

North Carolina, 12th-ranked in the Associated Press poll, erased a 10-point deficit in the first half and routed N.C. State 97-81. Dennis Wyucik threw in 25 points for the Tar Heels who drew out by 21 points in the second half to win easily.

Villanova, NCAA-bound, downed Boston College 90-77 behind 23 points from Howard Porter. Providence kept its NIT hopes alive by drubbing St. Bonaventure, already in the NIT, 88-56. Nehru Kino led the Friars with 27 points.

Larry Harris' basket in the last 15 seconds helped West Virginia edge Pitt 66-64. Oklahoma tripped Iowa State 95-88. Syracuse shaded Niagara 60-59. NYU overcame Boston U. 86-79 and DePaul downed Xavier of Ohio 84-76 behind Ed Goode's 31 points.

Gridder Turns Rock Singer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Wendell Hayes, veteran running back for the Kansas City Chiefs, has a new sideline: rock singer.

The 7-year pro veteran began his entertainment career last week at a Kansas City night club owned by former teammate, Ed Lothamer. Lothamer is retired from pro football.

Hayes is described by fellow musicians as shy but "impossible to drag off the stage once he's going."

The 6-foot-1, 220-pound native of Oakland, is vocalist of a group called "The Front Four."

Hayes said most of his friends, including teammates and Chiefs Coach Hank Stram responded enthusiastically to his entry into show business.

"Coach Stram was excited about it," Hayes said, "and every time I see him, he still talks about it. He's helping us all he can."

Despite his apparent joy at singing, Hayes is certain his entrance into the night club scene won't interfere with football.

"When training begins in July the late nights end," he said. "I can't afford to get out of shape."

Frazier 7-5 Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, the nation's unofficial odds-maker, insists the Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali heavyweight title fight Monday night is a "pick 'em" bet although book makers have made Frazier a 7-5 favorite.

"I called it an even fight from the beginning, and still think it is," the dapper public relations man from Las Vegas said today. "It's the people who have turned the odds in Frazier's favor."

"Frankly, the fight to me appears so close that I would be afraid to bet a plugged dime on it.

"It is strength against strength. Ali normally eats up smaller, bore-in fighters like Frazier. On the other hand, Frazier prefers a dancing, jabbing, back-peddaling target like Ali."

"Also, there are so many hidden factors that make the fight a hazardous bet."

Snyder, who will quote odds on the drop of a leaf or flight of a sparrow, said he doubted that the multi-million-dollar spectacle, which has aroused worldwide interest, will be a big betting show.

"I know, back hom in Las Vegas, where you get a feel for such things, the action has been very slow," he said. "There is considerable man-to-man wagering on a small scale. I know of no heavy bets."

The Greek said the betting has been subdued by two factors—the economic cut-back and considerable doubts.

"There are no big gamblers any more—the big bettors such as they had in the 1920s," he added. "I suppose the biggest betting fights were those between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, because passions ran so high."

"The second Max Schmeling-Joe Louis bout was another. That's where I made my debut. I bet $900 on Louis and won $500. People are afraid of this one."

Snyder said a bettor would have to assume that the fight is strictly on the square.

"There is too much money involved for it not to be honest," he said. "Besides, you can't think of larceny and still bet."

Jimmy, nattily attired in a black and white checkered jacket, attended Wednesday's physical examination of both fighters at Madison Square Garden.

Frazier, wearing a heavy beard, predicted he would stop Ali inside 10 rounds. Ali promised it would be "no contest." Then both returned to their camps—Frazier to Philadelphia and Ali to Miami—to continue workouts until they come back Saturday.

Medina Says Army Won't Let Him Refute Calley

WASHINGTON (AP)—Capt. Ernest Medina says the Army has barred him from refuting testimony by Lt. William Calley Jr. that orders to kill civilians at My Lai came from Medina.

In an action filed Monday in the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, Medina's attorneys alleged the order barring Medina from testifying against Calley was issued in writing to Capt. Aubrey Daniel, the 29-year-old prosecutor in the Calley trial.

Calley, who led the first platoon in Medina's Charlie Company, is charged with the premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians. Conviction could bring the death penalty.

Medina has been formally accused—but not referred to trial—of being "responsible for the alleged murders of Vietnamese noncombatant persons allegedly committed by members of his company." Gerald Alech, an assistant to Medina's attorney, said the specifications alleged Medina killed not less than 175 persons.

The petition filed Monday said Daniel wants to call Medina, now of Ft. McPherson, Ga., as a prosecution witness against Calley but "has, however, been directed by respondents not to do so."

Daniel could not be reached for comment. His assistant counsel, Capt. John Partin, refused comment. It was the first confirmation that Daniel wanted Medina to testify in the Calley trial.

The petition asks the Army be prohibited from bringing Medina to court-martial.

Medina's accusations against the Army Monday were echoed by Col. Oran K. Henderson, who is charged with covering up the My Lai slayings.

Henderson, in a prepared statement issued to newsmen at the Pentagon, accused the Army of trying to block his efforts to present his side of the story.

Henderson, 50, of Indianapolis, was referred to court-martial last Friday on charges he "willfully failed to conduct a proper and thorough investigation" of My Lai. He was commander of the 11th Infantry Brigade, parent unit of the task force that assaulted the South Vietnamese village.

Kiwanis Club

Caproco Plans

James Statler, Caproco assistant plant manager, outlined plans of the company to members of the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at Rustic Rock Inn. President Pat Lea presided and Bob Meyers led the singing.

The company, formerly known as Canvas Products, Statler said, "was formed in St. Louis many years ago, predominately as a canvas sewing company."

Ten years ago it acquired the Atlas Athletic Equipment company and enlarged production of products. Two years later it opened a plant in Sikeston, with 60,000 square feet of space and employed 35 to 40. There are two plants, the larger one in Denver, with a plant office in St. Louis.

In 1968 the company went into a research and development program, building gymnastic apparatus, which met Olympic specifications, and became a member of the Metalist Products Company, that did a $60 million business, of which the Sikeston plant produced $6 million.

The third addition to the plant in Sikeston has begun, with 17,000 square feet of warehouse, and 4,000 feet of office space. The warehouse should be completed April, and the office space July 1.

The company will have a working force of 250 by mid-July.

Guests were Joe Sineni, St. Louis, and Mike Limbaugh, Sikeston.

David Bowman announced the club pancake day would be March 23 at Goza-Harper Motor Company.

Court Gives Newspapers Freer Hand in Reports on Politicians

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court expanded Wednesday the freedom of newspapers to report about political candidates without fear of libel judgments.

In an unanimous holding the court said aspects of a candidate's entire life, no matter how far back in time or remote from the political race, may be put to the public unhampered by the threat of a libel suit.

In other actions Wednesday, the court:

—Upheld the authority of military tribunals to try about checking into them.

—Reversed by the holding were and sailors accused of all other crimes within the United States should be turned over to civilian courts.

—Ruled against the United Mine Workers in a lawsuit by small Tennessee coal operators, and made it easier to prove antitrust violations by unions.

Even if the newspaper gets its facts wrong, the court said, it can be sued for damages only if it is guilty of malice. This means that it either knew the facts or were wrong or was reckless in not checking into them.

The decision spoke in terms committed on military posts of "publications" and the "press" obviously including in contentions that only military its scope radio, television and crimes should be subject to a court-martial and that soldiers a $20,000 award to a former New Hampshire congressman and a $22,000 award to a smalltown Florida politician. In both instances jurors found they had been libeled by newspapers.

The ruling is a further broadening of the Supreme Court's decision in a New York Times case in 1964 that public officials can collect libel judgments only if they prove malice. In subsequent rulings the court included holders of minor office and private individuals who willingly take part in public

The holding adds to this category candidates for political office, no matter how small the office sought.

Jet Stopping Distance Important

WASHINGTON — The advent of larger and faster jets in commercial and military aviation has made it necessary to predict more accurately aircraft stopping distances on wet, slippery runways to prevent major accidents.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has worked out a solution that eventually may save more lives on highways than on runways.

The NASA technique permits good prediction of the stopping distances of different types of aircraft on varied runways and can provide data for realistic calculations of crosswind limitations. Airplanes or slippery runways can go off the surface's side or the end.

Engineers at NASA's Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va., modified and equipped a conventional automobile so that it can provide a meaningful measure of the slipperiness of a wet runway.

The test automobile is fitted with a diagonal braking system—one that links the right front to the left rear wheel and the left front to the right rear in separate subsystems.

For example, when the left front and right rear wheels are locked, or braked, the right front and left rear wheels roll freely. The diagonal braking system results in less fishtailing and weaving, thus providing more accurate measurements.

Stopping distances of the car were measured from a speed of 60 miles per hour for the skidding locked wheels during both wet and dry runway conditions.

Tests on a wide variety of runway surfaces and surface conditions showed that the ratio of wet to dry stopping distances for the auto correlated well with those of representative aircraft types. This indicated a reliable way to predict the wet to dry stopping distance ratios for aircraft and a good means of rating runways for slipperiness when wet, flooded, slush covered or with a thin coating of ice.

Substantial test data, much of it obtained in a joint NASA-Air Force runway traction program, have been made immediately available to airlines, airport operators and other government agencies.

Interested organizations and agencies include the Department of Transportation's National Transportation Safety Board, Air Force, Air Transport Association, DOT's Federal Aviation Agency and the Airline Pilots Association.

The FAA has drafted an advisory circular on the use of the NASA-developed technique to evaluate the slipperiness of civil airport runways.

In response to frequent demands, NASA has used the diagonal-braked car technique to evaluate many civil and military runways and the Langley Research Center has conducted training courses on construction, instrumentation and operation of appropriate test cars.

Mr. SHAW SAYS:
Dear Mr. Wallhausen:
It was with much concern that I read your open letter to me in your Thursday, January 4, 1971, edition of the Enterprise Courier.

Let me assure you that we, too, are aware of the accidents which have occurred on this stretch of Route 60 (the levee section) and are concerned about them, as we are about the unnecessary deaths and injuries on all highways.

We do agree that every measure possible should be taken to reduce the accident rate on this section of road. Nothing would be easier for us than to erect more signs and hazard markers. If we were of the opinion that this would eliminate or reduce accidents, we would do just that; however, this is generally not the case as superfluous signing not only detracts the motorist's immediate attention from necessary signs, but usually causes the motorist to disregard or perhaps be inattentive at other locations having standard or normal signing.

In your letter you recommend the use of large signs similar to those in place on Route 61, Cape Girardeau County. We have had such signs in use on Route 61, north of Fruitland, for a period of about 13 months. These were placed on a trial basis, but, while they have caused considerable favorable public comment, the accident rate has not been reduced.

We will review the hazard marker situation along this section of roadway and if we feel that additional markers might reduce the accident rate we will not hesitate to place them. We do intend to repaint all the striping on this section of roadway just as soon as our schedule and the weather will permit.

After reading your letter to me, I seem to be left with the disturbing thought that the accidents which have occurred on this route were caused by the road itself, or by lack of proper marking of the road. We agree that most, or possibly all, of these accidents would not have occurred had the road been dual lane, or wider, or straighter, etc. Certainly, prevention of such accidents is a major factor warranting Route 1-57 construction or, for that matter, relocation and improvement of most routes; however, at the cost of sounding callous and protective on the part of myself and the State Highway Department, I can say that without a doubt almost all carelessness, inexperience, or poor judgment on the part of one of the drivers involved in the accident. Perhaps the death, injury, heartbreak and financial loss which is cast on the driver responsible for the accident seems sufficient burden for him to bear. Certainly it is easier to blame something, or someone else.

As a newspaper editor you could perform a public service by helping to educate the operators of all vehicles as to the responsibility they assume when they step into a two-ton vehicle and head it down a public road at a high, but legal, rate of speed. Many drivers do not accept this responsibility; and when directly confronted in an accident they attempt to find fault with anything other than themselves. I fear, Mr. Wallhausen, that your open letter to me concerning this "killer section of highway" has only reinforced this idea of irresponsible drivers in the minds of others, and you just might be assisting these drivers in their effort to "pass the buck" and rid themselves of blame.

It is absolutely necessary for the operator of every motor vehicle to realize that oftentimes weather conditions, roadway conditions and his own physical and mental condition will demand much more than a normal degree of caution in the operation of his vehicle on a public road.

Mr. Wallhausen, as the editor of a newspaper that is known to "tell it like it is", please assist us as we attempt to reduce the rising accident toll by placing the blame where it lies.

You may feel free to publish this letter if you wish. Your interest in traffic safety is much appreciated.

Very truly yours,
W. H. Shaw

AN OPEN LETTER TO
AUNT MARY
By JOHN DAVIS

This days sun, lay still a fathom below the eastern horizon. I awoke feeling as though I had slept the night, between two alligators. The part of me that is physical, moved in a hap-hazard, uncoordinated way, from the world of dreams, to the reality of now. Its moments like these when I envy the dog; Fur up, like the sails of a three masted schooner, eyes aight, like the lamps of a gig, tail waggin, like the sails of a dutch windmill. A glance at the clock told me that it was too early, the announcer on a local new station, told the time, it was too late. I fought against the idea that it was one of those days, when I should of stood in bed.

Time moved like the 20th century limited, racing thru the infinite reaches of the silent nite. It seems to me that the battle of everyday living, takes a great deal of my time. I seem to recall, that in past years the pace did not seem as fast, nor did it seem as hectic. I have a rather vague remembrance, that, there was time to do a bit of this, and a bit of that, a hundred and one things, that had nothing to do with the business of paying the bills, and earning a living. I have an oil painting that I started, more than a year ago; One of these days, when I have time,, I'll finish it.

There is a winding road, that meanders thru the rolling foothills of the mountains to the east, where fields of sunbathed golden grain, waving in the warm summer breeze seem to beckon an invitation, to take a moment and rest, beneath the sheltering arms of one of the great oaks, that dot the picturesque landscape of the San Gabriel valley. One of these days when I have time,,I'll stop. There is a shaded woodland path, where the late afternoon sun, seeping thru the sheltering boughs, cast flickering shadows, that seem to dance to a melody of memories. A place to just sit, and dream,,or,one might follow the path, beyond the bend,,beyond the turn,,beyond the hill,,and far beyond the distant horizon. Eons into the past;— Untold ages into the future. A broken twig, a bended bough, a crushed leaf, the multipatterned foam in a rainwashed stone, the fallen trunk of a lightning shattered oak, the majestically sculptured mountains. Life leaves its hallmark in the endless corridors of time. Someday, when I have time, I'd like to see what's at the end of that path. A great castle, perhaps? rising out of the morning mist,,towering above the crystal clear waters of a magic lake,,? A magnificent modern city of the future,,its architectonic splendor spiralingly ever upwards, as if to touch the stars.

There is of course, the outside chance, that what I'll find is a neon lighted, hot dog stand..So, make mine,,a rootbeer, a big one.

The Honorable Warren E. Hearnes
Governor, State of Missouri
Capitol Building
Jefferson City, Missouri 65101

Dear Governor Hearnes:
I saw Mr. Baclesse's letter to you in the Jefferson City paper. He didn't say near all that should have been said.

Being a Negro, I find the unions discriminate two ways. I am forced to belong to the Butchers Union in order to keep my job at the poultry plant here, while others of my race cannot get jobs on construction work because the craft unions won't accept them.

In my experience in a compulsory union shop, the officials from Kansas City run the whole show. Here in our local in California we have no officers. We are not consulted about dues raises or initiation fees. We can never get copies of by-laws or financial records. We don't know where our money goes except it don't stay here to do anything for us.

Students here who want to work during the summer are also forced to pay initiation fees and dues. Each year they work they have to pay initiation fees again. When they start to work they get to work thirty days, then they have to join the union or quit. But dues are taken from their pay for that first thirty days, too. It costs them over $40 just so they can work about three months. They need that money for school clothes and books and other necessary things.

Governor, for the sake of the working people in Missouri and particularly to help stop the discrimination against minority groups, I hope you look again at Mr. Baclesse's letter and help get a Right to Work Law for Missouri. Then we could join a good union if we wanted to or not join if it was a bad one and did not work for us.

Sincerely,
Ruth Johnson

Lobster Fisherman Gives up Sea for Knitting Nets at 94

FRIENDSHIP, Maine (AP)—At the age of 94, spry, Bible-quoting Charles D. Murphy is retiring as the oldest lobster fisherman in Maine.

A wiry man with a wisp of white hair and twinkling blue eyes, Murphy has made his living from the coastal waters around Monhegan Island for 75 years.

"I'll miss it, but home is the best place to be when you're 94," he said recently. "I'm slowing up some, you know."

Murphy lives in a rambling two-story wooden home in this Knox County fishing village of 800.

To keep busy now that he is not lobstering, Murphy has taken more orders for knitting nylon "heads," or nets, for lobster traps.

He said he knitted 2,500 heads last year and made about $200 but hopes to surpass that this year.

"If I knit 15 a day, I'm doing good," he said. "I don't push. I just knit off and on when I have a leisure."

There are three heads on traps. Side heads are attached to both ends of the pot and allow the lobster to enter. The "bedroom" head on the inside contains the bait and prevents the lobster from escaping.

"You don't find many people who would work for $1.50 a day like I do," Murphy said. "Today most folks want at least twice as much as that an hour."

"When I first started making a living at lobstering, I used a sailboat or row dory," he said. "We would get up at 3 a.m., fish out five or six miles off the coast and be back in about 2:30 or 3 p.m. so we could repair the nets for the next day's fishing."

"The gas driven boat came about 1904 here. I was the second man to get one in the harbor."

"Of course, the one to pay for this was the poor lobster," Murphy said. "We took more and more, and I worried about it."

Before the turn of the century, Murphy said, he got and be back in about 2:30 or 3 p.m. so we could repair the nets for the next day's fishing.

"You couldn't do much at that price now. They go by the pound. The average lobster today would be about $1.50 a piece," he said.

"Lobstering is a good business. It doesn't give you a great many extras but a good living. You have to work pretty hard to get what's out there," he said.

Bill for Sunday Liquor Sales Moves Forward

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A bill which would allow the sale of liquor in restaurants on Sunday won approval of the Senate Criminal Jurisprudence Committee Monday, 5 to 2.

Sen. Edward T. Linehan, D-St. Louis, the sponsor, said the measure would apply to restaurants which receive 50 per cent of their gross income from the sale of prepared meals or foods.

Mayor A.J. Cervantes of St. Louis, told the committee such action would increase tourism and encourage conventions in St. Louis.

Hugh Wamble of Kansas City, of the Christian Life Commission of the Missouri Baptist Convention, said instead of favoring the bill the committee "should try to improve laws to make drinkers and those who profiteer from them more liable for personal damages and social problems resulting directly from the consumption of these beverages—every day of the week."

Other witnesses said whatever gain the state realized from Sunday sales would be lost in treating alcoholics and hiring more policemen. Maurice Blum, speaking for the hotels in Kansas City, said it would boost city and state revenue, create more jobs and make the state more attractive to organizations looking for convention sites.

Best Juvenile Books Will Go on Display

CAPE GIRARDEAU — An exhibit of more than 600 new books for pre-school through senior high school students will go on display Tuesday in the graduate room of Kent library at Southeast Missouri state college.

The selection, provided by the library by Books on Exhibit, Inc. of Mt. Kisco, N.Y., represents the best juvenile literature released by 71 publishers during the last half of 1970.

The exhibit will remain on display at the college through March 26, which is the final day of the annual meeting of the Southeast Missouri Teachers' Association.

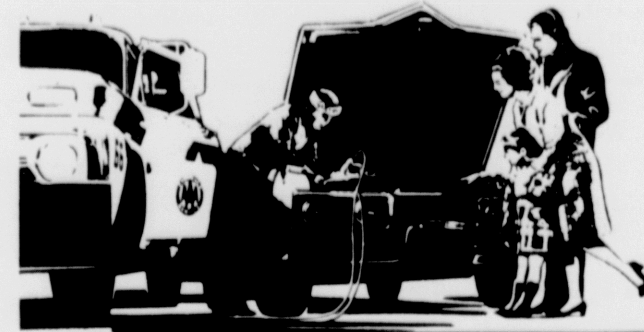

Broken down into 25 main classifications and 103 sub-classifications, the titles range from picture books for pre-schoolers to substantial reference works for high school seniors.

Books on Exhibit is a national exhibiting enterprise now in its 20th year. It provides the display free-of-charge to schools, colleges, and regional educational agencies.

Viewing hours for the exhibit at Kent Library are: Tuesday through Thursday, 8 a.m.-10:30 p.m.; March 12, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; March 13-18, 8 a.m.-10:30 p.m.; March 19, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and March 22-26, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

New York City began operating the first streetcar in the world on Nov. 26, 1832. It was a horse-drawn car.

THANK YOU AAA Garages...

and thank you Missouri Motorists.

Old Man Winter is hitting Missouri pretty hard this year. But AAA garages are handling your emergency road service calls as quickly and efficiently as possible under these severe weather conditions. The Auto Club is proud of the service its AAA contract garages are rendering. Many servicemen are working 18 hours a day assisting stranded motorists.

Area drivers also are reacting well to the "Chill Factor." With zero temperatures and icy winds, most motorists are glad they winterized their cars in November.

Other motorists who are now experiencing winter starting problems have shown an understanding of emergency road service caused by the weather.

We thank them for their patience while Auto Club assistance is on the way.

Lewis Will Head Audio-Visual Section

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Dr. E. E. "Gene" Lewis, audio-visual instructor at Southeast Missouri State College and an associate professor in the division of education and psychology, has been chosen for a two-year term as president-elect of the division of audio-visual education of the Missouri State Teacher's Association.

The position automatically makes him program chairman and a member of the executive board of the organization until he assumes the presidency in the spring of 1973.

Dr. Lewis' opponent for the office was Ted Rohr, assistant dean of instruction at Forrester Park Community College in St. Louis and formerly a faculty member at Southeast Missouri State. Rohr was named to the executive board.

Howard Bock, audio-visual chief in the Cape Girardeau public schools, accompanied Dr. Lewis to the state meeting in Warrensburg and was chosen to serve on the membership committee.

The new president-elect, who came to the Southeast Missouri State campus in 1969, is scheduled to deliver a paper at the annual meeting of the Association for Educational Communications and Technology, which is affiliated with the National Education Association. The meeting will begin March 19 in Philadelphia.

Dr. Lewis has bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Houston and a doctorate in education from Texas Tech. He has extensive experience in radio and television, advertising, and public relations.

Symington Urges Congress to Halt 'Kissinger Syndrome'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington said Tuesday he would appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, even in closed session, to urge Congress to halt the "Kissinger Syndrome" of state in everything but title and as a result, Secretary of State William P. Rogers has become the object of laughter on the Washington social circuit.

"It's rather sad wherever you go in the afternoon or the evening around this town to hear the very able secretary of state laughed at," Symington told the Senate.

The Missouri Democrat said people are saying Rogers is secretary of state in title only.

Symington suggested that Congress, when it appropriates money to the executive branch, it act to curb what he called the "Kissinger syndrome" of foreign policy decisions based at the White House.

Symington said Kissinger "emerges as clearly the most powerful man in the Nixon administration next to the President himself." He complained that Kissinger refuses to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, even in closed session.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said he hoped Symington was wrong about Rogers. "I don't think that's the case," he said. "I hope it isn't the case. I think if it were the case, he would resign."

Symington said in his view, it is to Rogers' credit that he does not resign, but remains in post despite a difficult organizational situation.

A Capitol appearance by Rogers to explain Indochina to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "is rather an empty exercise," Symington said.

But Kissinger, the man with the answers, has never testified to that committee or any other, and remains "without any accountability of any kind whatever," said Symington.

He spoke at a time when several bills reaffirming the congressional voice in foreign policy are being considered.

Symington, a senior member of the Foreign Relations Committee, repeated assertions Kissinger planned the Cambodian and Laotian invasions and called a hard-line approach to trade with Eastern Europe, the Cuban-Russian sub-base incident and to the strategic arms limitation talks.

Kissinger's power begins with his 110-man National Security Council staff.

While Cabinet members, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and others are on the council, it is Kissinger who holds the reins, Symington said.

Kissinger is chairman of the six groups under the security council: the Verification Panel which monitors the SALT talks; the Vietnam Special Studies, Washington Special Action, and Senior Review groups which deal with critical issues across the board; the "40" Committee named for a Nixon directive with that number which handles the covert intelligence effort, and the Defense Programs Review Committee.

198 New and Expanding Industries on MOPAC

ST. LOUIS — Industry plant, San Antonio, Tex. Dog and cat food processing plant, St. Joseph, Mo. Electrical transformer plant, Shreveport, La. Can manufacturing plants, St. Joseph, Mo. and Houston, Tex. Aluminum mill, Lake Charles, La.

The 1970 figures, the highest in MoPac history, exceeded 1969 totals by $245-million. Since 1965, nearly 1,500 new or expanded industrial facilities have located along the 12,000-mile, 12-state MoPac System. They represent a dollar investment of nearly $2.5-billion.

MoPac operates its own Industrial Development Department and works closely with other agencies such as banks, utilities, state and local development agencies in attracting new industry to its area.

MoPac has begun development of its own industrial parks, areas where all basic ground clearing, installation of streets, utilities and railroad tracks are done before the companies construct their plants. One park is nearing completion at San Antonio, Texas. Another 201-acre park has been opened recently at Austin, Texas. MoPac also has available many individual industrial sites.

Among new facilities built along the Missouri Pacific in 1970 were:

Chemical plants at Gayles, Donaldsonville and Paincourtville, La. Home appliance manufacturing plant, Searcy, Ark. Lumber processing mills, Urania, La. and New Waverly, Tex. Sheet metal manufacturing plant, Longview, Tex. Iron ore pellet mill, Pilot Knob, Mo. Human food processing

Foster Children Easier Qualified As Dependents

ST. LOUIS — The Tax Reform Act of 1969 makes it easier to qualify foster children as dependents, E. C. Coyle, Jr., IRS District Director for Missouri said today.

A foster child now can be claimed as a dependent on the same terms as a natural child if he lives with the taxpayer and is a member of the household for the entire year.

The effect of the Act also is to permit a taxpayer a dependency exemption for a foster child who makes $625 or more if the child is under 19 or a full-time student and the other dependency tests are met. Previously, such a foster child could not qualify as a dependent even though all other dependency requirements were met.

A foster child is defined as one in the care of someone other than natural or adopted parents who cares for the child as his own.

BEAUMONT (AP) — Whiskey drinkers who see snakes should have been around the Bamboo Lounge a few nights ago.

Joe Bowen, owner of the lounge, said he found a snake hiding behind a counter. All Bowen could see was its head.

"I went back out to the car for the shotgun" Bowen recounted. "He started moving out from behind the counter and he was about half way out from behind it by the time I got back."

The owner shot the critter and went over to it.

"I started picking him up — and I just kept picking him up. It kind of shook me how big he was. You just don't see many snakes that big."

Senate Deletes Juvenile Code Protection for 16-Year-Olds

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate voted Tuesday to remove the protection of the state's juvenile code from youngsters between the ages of 16 and 17.

With little debate the Senate advanced a bill by Sen. Noel Cox, R-Ozark, to make anyone over 16 subject to prosecution law to all barbar and beauty shops so none could practice

More Entries Needed for Fair

CAPE GIRARDEAU—A call was issued today for more area junior and senior high schools to submit entries for the 15th annual Southeast Missouri regional Science Fair April 13-16 at Houck Field House on the Southeast Missouri State College campus.

Deadline for entry forms to be postmarked in March 19. A spokesman for the fair, which is co-sponsored by the college and Cape Girardeau's daily newspaper, said so far only about 30 schools have submitted entries.

The average each year is about 35 schools participating, the spokesman said, but he added, "There ought to be many, many more. There are schools in the area which have never entered anything."

The fair is made up of two divisions, one for grades 7-9 and the other for grades 10-12. There are 11 categories in which exhibits may be entered.

The projects may have been constructed by an individual or by a group, but all must be the work of students alone.

Numerous awards are offered to participants in both the junior and senior divisions with the top award going to the senior division participants in the form of two all expense paid trips to the 22nd International Science and Engineering Fair, scheduled this year from May 11-14 in Kansas City.

Additional information about the fair may be obtained from the fair director, Dr. Robert Kuster, professor and head of the department of biology at the college.

In an unusual move, a bill to open the way for state grants up to $40 a year for students in private colleges was sent back to the Senate Committee on Higher Education so opponents could be heard.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said he had been advised a number of opponents did not know last week's hearing was to be held.

Sen. Ray Howard, D-St. Louis, said the notice of the hearing has been posted on the Senate bulletin board by his secretary but agreed to send the bill back to committee in the interests of fairness.

Also advanced Tuesday was a bill to raise the pay of the state personnel board (merit system) director, Norris Steenberger, from $15,000 to $18,500 a year to put the salary in line with similar state and local government jobs.

Point to Needs Of Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE — Authority, can think of 1,200 reasons why the city needs to build a community center — through the responses, "but this complete with an Olympic size swimming pool."

LETTERS BEGAN TO TRICKLE IN from the east side. Then word began to spread and the volume of letters picked up.

"People from all over began to write in, from kindergarten to retirement age," Jones said. "We even received letters from as far away as Steele and Hayti. The whole county is interested."

Jones said he was impressed that only one letter was received at his post office box. The rest were delivered to his office by volunteers, "kids, parents, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts."

The bulk of the letters said the city primarily needs: A community center-recreation facility.

A vocational training school. A licensed nursing home.

The community center, Caruthersville's grasp.

"We hope to be able to announce formal approval (of financing) within six weeks," Jones said.

There is money available to build a 40,000-square-foot center, with an "indoor-outdoor Olympic-size swimming pool," response from the river town of Jones said. He did not say where 7,000 than he had bargained for.

Youngest College President Settles in

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

FRANCONIA, N.H. — (NEA) — There is a rope tow and a bunny hill right below the third-floor window of Leon Botstein, with the White Mountains of New Hampshire ranging to the west.

Botstein has been on skis on that hill once.

He is the president of Franconia College, on the site of a resort hotel on a promontory overlooking this north country village of 800 people.

He is also 23 years old, which makes him unique in the annals of American education.

"I call him Leon," says his svelte secretary, Diane, who is seven years older and has been on the job a month.

In his office, which is furnished in makeshift modern — the building is old Catskills, rambling four-story frame — Leon Botstein is working on a hamburger, French fries and a cola, ordered up from the diner at the bottom of the hill. It is intercession, and he is working on a report for the Board of Trustees.

He has been president of the college for six months. It has 250 students in residence and 32 faculty members. The style of the school, both people and surroundings, is mod-informal. The shortest haircut belongs to Botstein, who keeps his black sideburns neatly trimmed but lets his kinky black hair grow freely upward and outward. He is clean-shaven, wears a tie and a herringbone sports coat. He could pass for 19.

Until a year and a half ago, Botstein was a university student himself. Now he has been on the Johnny Carson show and the Dick Cavett show. "That's something," he says, "to tell one's grandchildren."

"One of the difficulties of this job is the public nature of it. Even if you get important in your own field, it never has the public dimensions of this. It's hard to know what the publicity about my age does for the school at large. It simply creates publicity about the school, and that's good. It's a plus which they hadn't counted on receiving."

Leon Botstein

Like many other private schools of its size, without large endowments, Franconia needs attention because it has financial problems. When he took the job last summer, Botstein said he wanted to be a "college president in the old sense, not out raising funds all the time, but a guy whose principal efforts are spent trying to shape the educational direction of the school." And how has this worked out?

"Thirty per cent of my time is spent either directly or indirectly working with the financial problems," he says. "At this point I wouldn't say the school is in danger of going out of business. But you have to make very important decisions that affect lives — about fundraising, about allocation of resources, about budgeting, about personnel."

Still, in his first semester, he taught courses in Russian, in Greek civilization and in chorus. An accomplished violinist, he also held a concert for the school last fall.

"There's not a lot of time," he says, "for reflection. It's very hard for a college struggling for basic survival to think in terms of 25 years into the future. We'd like it to be a place where student and faculty share the responsibility of running it. We would also like it to be a place where new approaches to higher education are tried."

He will lecture on that subject in a symposium at Auburn University in Alabama on Feb. 25. Next semester, he will restrict his teaching at Franconia to a course on the future of American education. Obviously, he's a part of it.

You understand what Bot-stein is all about as an educator when he explains why a young person would enroll at Franconia College (two students now are older than their 23-year-old president).

"He or she would be part of a community endeavor," he says, "where students and faculty, and trustees as well, are actively involved together to help the college grow. One is simply not a student, a replaceable figure in a large student body, or even a small student body. There's no anonymity around here. We're interested in trying out new ideas."

Like his generation, Botstein is concerned with motivation and relevance.

"Too many colleges," he notes, "have become so vocationally oriented that they simply process individuals for a degree. A social or economic status is achieved which is comfortable but has never brought the student to thinking of the assumptions behind his or her goals."

Such eloquence led the trustees of Franconia to hire him last June. He was then a special assistant to the president of the New York City Board of Education. They met him when he visited his brother-in-law, a Franconia student. The president of the school resigned, and Botstein was enlisted to help find a successor. A month later, the chairman suggested he send his name in. His academic credentials were a bachelor's degree from Chicago and a master's in history from Harvard.

"I didn't expect anything," he admits, "but thought it would be fun. When the offer came, I didn't agonize. I was young and, you know, this is serendipity. You have to make a split-gut decision. You either get on the bus or you let it go by. I got on the bus."

"The risk here is high. If a job doesn't work when you're 50, you've got something built up behind you, as a teacher or in academics. But when you're 26 and you've been a college president and it doesn't work out well, it's an odd dossier with which to go looking for a job."

New Law Cushions Credit Crunch

By ERNIE HOOD

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Tom and Marcia were happily married, living in Seattle and, as they describe it, "on top of the world."

Then Marcia lost her job in a general layoff.

Without two pay envelopes every week, Tom and Marcia fell behind in payments on their car, kitchen appliances, furniture and what Marcia called "a lot of other things that everyone needs."

A finance company loan helped out for awhile, but soon the bills caught up with Tom and Marcia again, then passed them. Court action by their creditors quickly led to a garnishment—a court order allotting part of Tom's wages every week to the people he owed money to.

Tom's employer didn't like that turn of events and Tom was out of a job.

It was then that Tom contacted the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division. Compliance officers there told him new laws on wage garnishment place restrictions on employers who want to fire employees because of garnishments.

Tom got his job back and—sadder but wiser—arranged to pay his creditors.

Wage-hour Division officials say that with greater availability of credit having led to a boom in garnishments cases like Tom and Marcia's are not atypical.

Wage-hour Division Administrator Robert D. Moran says there is about $110 billion in consumer credit outstanding today, compared to $5.7 billion in 1945 and estimates that between 30,000 and 120,000 people are fired each year because of garnishments.

To enforce wage garnishment and truth-in-lending provisions of the new Consumer Credit Protection Act, which went into effect July 1, the Wage-hour Division and the Federal Trade Commission have agreed to coordinate their efforts to make the law effective.

"We think that by working together we can discourage ill-advised extensions of credit, reduce the number of personal bankruptcies and even ease the pressure on welfare rolls," Moran says.

The new law limits the portion of an employee's wages that can be garnished and prohibits arbitrary firing of any employee because of garnishment. It says the maximum part of the total disposable earnings (wages after taxes) subject to garnishment is the smaller of:

• 25 per cent of disposable earnings per week;

• The amount by which disposable earnings for a week exceed 30 times the federal minimum hourly wage in effect at the time earnings are payable (currently this is $48, thirty times $1.60 per hour).

The law also prohibits an employer from arbitrarily firing an employee whose earnings have been garnished.

Moran has also made an administrative ruling that "wages" for Fair Labor Standards Act purposes do not include sums paid on garnished payments that exceed the rate restrictions set by the Consumer Credit Protection Act.

SHOW & TELL

I made perhaps the greatest mistake of my entire 23 years of existence last night and shall regret it for many years to come. It goes something like this. Being Wednesday night I always have a light dinner and journey to the Malco for the week's movie review. However, last night, I was greatly pressed for time and failed to partake in any amount of food and everyone around me suffered. M. stomach put forth a number of sounds similar to the mating call of a wild buffalo.

Heads would slowly turn in my direction when my delicate tummy would utter its cries of hunger. As my luck would have it, my stomach would complain at just the precise moment when a big love scene was about to begin. It was a toss-up; watch the movie or listen to my stomach.

The movie, by the way was well worth watching-perferably on a full stomach.

The Owl and the Pussycat, and I know when, but I starring Barbara Streisand and George Segal.

Blood, Sweat and Tears, a little known rock group, does the music for the flick and that alone is worth the price of admission.

As fate would have it, Segal and Streisand fall in love and live happily ever after and my stomach roared its approval.

P.S.-Love Story is coming and I know when, but I promised I wouldn't say.

Teacher Official to Talk in Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU-The director of communications of the Missouri State Teachers Association three years, Miss N. Francille Bailey, will speak Monday night at Southeast Missouri State College.

Miss Bailey, who will be accompanied by Tom Penn, field consultant for MSTAs eastern region, will address members of the Student National Education Association. The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the ballroom of Memorial Hall.

Before joining the MSTAs headquarters staff in Jefferson City, Miss Bailey was director of special services for the American Red Cross, a fine arts instructor at Memphis, Mo., high school, director of alumni activities at Culver Stockton College in Canton, Mo., and director of school-community affairs for the Jefferson City public schools.

She is a past president of the American Association of University Women, Zonta International, and the Jefferson City library board. Miss Bailey was graduated from Northeast Missouri State College in Kirksville. She earned her master's degree at the University of Denver and has done advanced work at American University in Washington, D.C., the University of Minnesota, and Michigan State University.

In addition she received professional training in radio, television and theater at the University of California-Los Angeles.

That's The Law

Harry, an American businessman, saw red while in Russia. Particularly, when the Russian government seized some of his personal property, which was worth a lot of rubles, and then vetoes any effort on his part to get it back.

Outraged, Harry hurried home and sued the Russians for damages. And, when he obtained a court order giving him control over Russian property in the United States, out of which to satisfy his anticipated judgment, it was the Redskys' turn to see red.

"Such an order is illegal," they protested in court. "A foreign government can't be sued without its consent and we consent not even to the time of the day."

"They didn't ask my permission," was Harry's answer, "when they grabbed my property. The fact is we've got laws here in the United States. When a person's property is seized, he's entitled to damages. And, if the Russians don't like it, they can go back to Moscow."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Harry to continue his lawsuit against the Russians?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a foreign government, as asserted, cannot be sued in the United States without its consent; that if an American citizen is wronged by a foreign government, the problem is political and not a matter for our courts.

Based upon a 1923 New York Court of Appeals Decision.

So now MAMA'S PEARL is running in first place having reversed position with ONE BAD APPLE. The Patridge Family's DOESN'T SOMEBODY WANT TO BE WANTED? has joined the list in sixth place with two others newcomers in ninth and tenth. Have you made your bets for next week? IF YOU COULD READ MY MIND might be a tip.

TOP TEN SINGLES:

1. MAMA'S PEARL - Jackson Five
2. ONE BAD APPLE - Osmonds
3. HAVE YOU SEEN THE RAIN? - Creedence Clearwater Revival
4. ROSE GARDEN - Lynn Anderson
5. IF YOU COULD READ MY MIND - Gordon Lightfoot
6. DOESN'T SOMEBODY WANT TO BE WANTED? - The Patridge Family
7. SWEET MARY - Wadsworth Mansion
8. AMOS MOSES - Jerry Reed
9. SHE'S A LADY - Tom Jones
10. DON'T LET THE GREEN GRASS FOOL YOU - Wilson Pickett

TOP FIVE ALBUMS:

1. PEARL - Janis Joplin
2. LOVE STORY - original soundtrack
3. JESUS CHRIST - Superstar
4. ALL THINGS MUST PASS - George Harrison
5. CHICAGO III - Chicago

The Rascals lead the stars with new albums with their "Search And Nearness." Engelbert Humperdinck's "Sweetheart" should please his fans and Barbara Streisand lovers will want to hear her "Stoney End."

Among the singles, listen for George Harrison's "What I Like" and Steppenwolf's "Snow Blind Friend." The youngest of the Osmonds, Donny, has a single of his own, "Sweet and Innocent" and The Drifters offer "A Rose By Any Other Name."

Tax Payments Should Be Identified

ST. LOUIS—To be sure your tax account is properly credited, put your Social Security number on all checks or money orders sent for payment, E. C. Coyle, Jr., district director of Internal Revenue for Missouri, said today. It also helps if you write on the payment what it is for.

Then, if your check or money order is separated from your return during processing, your Social Security number on the payment will quickly identify it. An unidentified payment must be set aside for research and cannot be credited to your account until you have provided the IRS with the necessary information to identify it, Coyle said. In the meantime, you could get a bill.

Pentagon Says News Accounts Play up Defeats

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon official says news accounts of the South Vietnamese drive in Laos are focusing on defeats rather than successes.

Jerry W. Friedheim, a spokesman for the department, told newsmen Monday, "It just seems to me that the emphasis has been on places they (South Vietnamese) have left rather than places they went."

Asked if correspondents in South Vietnam were kept fully advised of all South Vietnamese operations, Friedheim replied reporters "have been rather thoroughly taken into conferences."

Until Thursday, American correspondents were barred from flying into Laos aboard U.S. helicopters. Some were able to hitch rides on South Vietnamese helicopters.

The ban was lifted Thursday by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Friedheim said the purpose of the operation is to disrupt North Vietnamese supply lines and not to occupy territory.

"I think it hasn't always been reported that they (South Vietnamese) had moved into 10 or 12 or 14 various places and the only thing I seem to see reported is that they have moved out of two or three places," he said.

The various movements, he said, are "fully in accord with the concept of the operations."

The first department store was the Bon Marche, which opened in Paris, France, about 1860.

Francois Duvalier, "Papa Doc"—physician-turned-witch doctor—President-turned-tyrant and absolute ruler of Haiti for life, whose reign is a mixture of voodoo and gangster-style brutality.

This extraordinary figure is the subject of a remarkable factual report by journalists Bernard Diederich and Al Burt.

Flexibility, Service Used to Describe Farm Credit Act

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A Land Bank service official of the Farm Credit Administration described the proposed Farm Credit Act of 1971 Tuesday as designed to implement flexibility among system borrowers.

Fred W. Gilmore, deputy governor and director of the land bank system, said the goal is to provide "better service to farmers and more and more flexible financing."

The measure would "bring about the most significant changes in the Land Bank system since its beginning more than 50 years ago," Gilmore said in a speech prepared for a meeting of St. Louis Federal Land Bank stockholders.

Gilmore said the proposal would place more loan-making responsibility on Federal Land Bank Association offices operating under 12 Federal Land Banks.

The Farm Credit Administration operates the Land Bank system, Federal Intermediate Credit Banks and the Federal Bank for Cooperatives.

"on the part of the black people".

"I seek this office for no selfish reason or personal gain. My ambition is not motivated by racial detestation or dislikes. I understand that in May of 1954, the Supreme Court of the United States, ruled that the practice of racial discrimination and segregation in public schools throughout this nation is unconstitutional; and that it also ruled the same for all other places of public accommodations in 1964. Therefore, it's against the law of the land to practice racial segregation and discrimination.

"I do not feel that I can contribute anything to the educational status or moral fiber of board or the school's administration. I do not think that my services there could add anything to the network of, or the program plan. Tried experience, qualification, as well as good social relationship on every level of social community and environment, in my opinion, is not lacking. Instead, I believe that this will be an opportunity for me to learn from such a staff of educational experts.

"I also seek to serve on this board because I believe that our school system has the best school program plan and progress; therefore, they cannot see the need for excellence. When they consult with their instructor, which is history, they can see no reason for them to accelerate their ambitions above that of black people of the past. They do not see or understand that they are actors in the midst of a revolution and social change.

"I believe that for them to apply themselves to the excellent point, the picture of the all white school board must be changed to coordinate with the integrated or mixed school system; good parent and community support given to the children as well as to the school's administrators.

"There is a need for concerned and trusted leadership; an effort to bring about communication, understanding and cooperation in the area of education on the part of the three major agencies of child development and education. This requires a process of time and efforts but for the sake of whoever might benefit from it, I would like to accept that challenge; And, if elected, I will put forth every effort possible, to help bring this about.

Elbert Henry Jones, minister of the Smith Chapel church, endorsed and pledged all of his moral support to J. W. Gwin saying: "I know that he is the man, who will establish communication that will serve the wishes of all people, and will work not on, but, with the board in solving problems both great and small, by working with teachers, parents and children in the hope of establishing better unity." ### Truck Driver Hurt

PORTAGEVILLE—A Memphis driver sustained face injuries and a possible back injury in a truck accident at 6:45 p.m. yesterday on highway 162, one half mile east of Portageville.

A 1970 GMC tractor-trailer truck traveling east, driven by Clarence Tankersley, 25, Memphis, hit an icy spot, went off the road into a ditch and skidded into a field, the highway patrol said.

Tankersley was taken to Pemiscot county Memorial hospital in Hayti.

ETNA DE FIELD

CHARLESTON—Mrs. Etna H. DeField, 76, died at 1 a.m. today in the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston. She was born Dec. 5, 1894 in Mississippi county.

She was a member of the United Methodist church. Her husband, Edward D. DeField, died July 31, 1961.

Survivors include three sons, Gerald, Edward, and Fred DeField, all of Charleston; one daughter, Mrs. Weber Gilmore of Sikeston; one brother, Frank Hay of Cairo; one sister, Mrs. Louise Berry of St. Louis; 13 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the McKimle Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. William Mathae, pastor of the United Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in I.O.O.F. cemetery.

Friends may call after 5 p.m. today at McKimle Funeral Home.

Getting a real kick out of bridge is assured if you sit opposite your frau.

It's not polite to interrupt when your wife's talking—in fact, it's apt to be impossible, or dangerous, to boot.

Things to know about poodles: the three classifications are toys - which may not be even taller than 10 inches; miniatures - to 15 inches; and the standard poodle, which may grow to 80 or 90 pounds.

"Poodles were originally bred for bear hunting," Mrs. Bratcher explained, "because they're such grumpy dogs. They don't give up easily."

As with humans, pre natal care for the mother dogs is important.

"Most puppy problems can be traced to improper care and diet of the mother before she whelped," Mrs. Bratcher said. "And after they're born, I start them on cod liver oil just like babies. Poodle mothers are usually very good and attentive. If you have a female that isn't, you might as well get rid of her."

"And they always know their offspring," she added. "I've had customers bring back a dog after two years and the mother would recognize it.... at least my dogs do."

She brought two of the kennel puppies into the living room to romp while we talked. The tiny apricot female, as yet nameless, boasted several champion forefathers. She looked like a woolly lamb four inches high. The chocolate colored male - harder to breed for true brown color - was of the miniature strain and had the most beautiful eyes.

"If an animal measures up 100 per cent to standards," Bratcher said, pulling the boy-dog into a show stance, "he will be the same length from shoulder to tail as he is from shoulder to floor. He should have good leather in his ears and straight, even teeth."

If the Bratchers are conscientious about their dogs, it has paid off. Before moving from St. Louis they sold pups to some of the largest shops there.

"We work mostly on a wholesale basis here, because of the work in the store and everything," Mrs. Bratcher said. "We do ship them out of state, on occasion, and get a better price, but the paper work involved is complicated. I'd rather send them to Cape Girardeau and know who sells them, because the people there did take time to check our references."

Oh yes, about the pekingese pups. "We're going to start raising pekapoos," (pekingese-poodle mixture - which blends the features of both breeds into one fluffy puff) Mrs. Bratcher remarked. "However, Little Frosty, our most valuable male poodle refuses to have anything to do with the pekingese puppies we have now. He really is an intolerant snob."

And the black cats. A pair of gilt-eyed feline beauties inhabit the back porch. They just came to live there, voluntarily.

"They're part Siamese, I'm sure," she told me.

Store customers dropped by the living room to see the dogs, and I found later that she sold four puppies that day, including the chocolate colored one that I bought.

Robertson Predicts Large Loan Volume

The Federal Land Bank of St. Louis met in St. Louis Monday and Tuesday. The meeting was attended by the Sikeston Association Manager Hal F. Robertson and his board of directors.

Robertson predicted that "the probability of the largest volume of new loans in the 54-year history of the Land Bank in 1971 because there is evidence of renewed interest in long term loans by farmers as loan applications pending in the land bank association office are high and steadily increasing. Last year farmers shied away from long term credit because of high interest rates, and postponed making capital investments, so they borrowed short term as much as possible.

"The situation has now changed, and greater demands for farm improvements and expansion, because of some increase in land market. We have 120 different possible combinations of loan funds and loan plans to meet the expected surge, compared to but 38 just a year ago.

"Concerning the reduction to 7.50 per cent is a result of recent improvement in monetary market starting in the last half of 1970. Our cost of money has dropped substantially permitting us to reduce our interest rate twice in five months.

"The Federal Land Bank association of Sikeston has loans outstanding of $19,379,610.54, 120 different possible combinations of loan funds and loan plans to meet the expected surge, compared to but 38 just a year ago.

Sikeston Association Board members attending the St. Louis meeting were Hutson Goza, Essex; Vincent Dirnberger, Oran; Dale Geske, Matthews; Howard Schneider, East Prairie; and Charles Meier, Jackson.

Cars Collide

Minor damage was the result of a two car accident on the Salcedo Road yesterday according to police.

Police said that a car driven by James Edwin Young, 25, of 113 Rueben stopped at the corner of Davis Boulevard and South Salcedo when, according to police, the driver apparently failed to see a vehicle driven by Mont Frank, 76, of Morehouse and turned into the path of the car. The Frank car was traveling east on South Salcedo.

Choosing crop chemicals can be confusing. There are any number with look-alike labels... similar claims... but different results. Let CFS give you a hand. We compare the leading chemicals point by point, and observe them in actual field use. The ones that do the best job are marked "CFS Approved". Then we go a step farther. We test your soil for organic matter, texture and pH, because all of these can affect herbicide performance. The "CFS Approved" chemicals we recommend will give the best control... at the lowest cost... on your land. CFS is the only retail supplier to balance all these factors in recommending a chemical protection program. Before you buy, be sure to look for the "CFS Approved" seal. Call or stop in today.
